

Rhyming is one of the best predictors of how easily a child will learn to read. To find out if your child is able to recognize and produce rhyme, just go over a few of the questions from this simple rhyming test!

Can Your Child Recognize Rhyme?

Do these words rhyme?	Yes/No fish/wish
horse/cow
top/mop
king/ring
on/off
stamp/lamp
rake/take big/small
nose/rose
dry/fry

If your child was unable to recognize all the rhymes, continue to provide a language-rich atmosphere in which you and your child explore a variety of books that contain rhyme. Read several books a day, and place an emphasis on the rhyming words by saying them a bit louder than the others.

As you read, occasionally point out words that rhyme. ("Oh, goat and boat rhyme! They sound the same at the end. Goat, boat.")

Can Your Child Produce Rhyme?

Tell me a word that rhymes with	(Real or nonsense words are fine!)
ball
log
now
blue
joy
sat

Total	Correct
IUtai	COLLECT

If your child has difficulty producing rhyme, continue to reinforce the concept of recognizing rhyme. Point out examples of rhyme that you encounter each day during read-aloud time and in conversation, and involve your child in lighthearted discussions about rhyming words.

"Look at the frog on that log! Oh, that was a rhyme! Frog rhymes with log. Let's see if we can think of another word that rhymes with frog and log."

For more ideas for teaching rhyme, check out the All About Reading Pre-reading program, and read our blog post on "Five Ways to Teach Rhyming."